

The local fire brigade has a brand new fire engine and they decide to ask the local religious leaders to give it their blessing. The priest sprinkles it with holy water and chants a few words in Latin. The parson waves a cross at it and chants, "And may the good Lord bless all who ride in her". The rabbi just wanders over to the engine and cuts two inches off the hose.